Forecast for Tuesday 23 Aug 2022

Weather: A cloudy start with some mist and fog patches, cloud falling below the hill tops and thick enough to give outbreaks of drizzle or light rain at times. Turning brighter during the late morning with cloud beginning to lift and thin and some glimmers of brightness. During the afternoon there will be some sunny intervals but a few showers developing. Showers mainly dying out in the early evening although remaining mostly cloudy.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 700m: 40% rising to 90%, early low cloud will hamper any views from the tops with a slow improvement throughout the day.

Low cloud and visibility: Broken layers of cloud above 400m in the morning, lifting and thinning slowly. By afternoon cloud will mostly have lifted and cleared with patches of lower cloud above 600m. Visibility will be poor in the morning in mist and drizzle but will improve and be mainly good in the afternoon just dropping in any showers.
